SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

The Great Unfailing SPECIFIC FOR Liver Complaint.

THE SYMPTOMS OF LIVER COMPLAINT are uneasiness and pain in the side, sometimes pain in the shoulder, and is mistaken for rheumatism; the Stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; bowels, in general, costive, sometimes alternating with lax; the head is troubled with pain, and dull, heavy sensation; considerable loss of memory, with painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done; often complaining of weakness, debility and low spirits. Sometimes many of the above symptoms attend the disease, and at other times very few of them; but the Liver is generally the organ most involved.

REGULATE THE LIVER, AND PREVENT

Dyspepsia, Constipation, Jaundice, Bilious Attacks, Chills and Fever, Headache, Colic, Depression of Spirits, Sour Stomach, Heartburn, Piles, etc.

Tonic, Alterative and Cathartic!

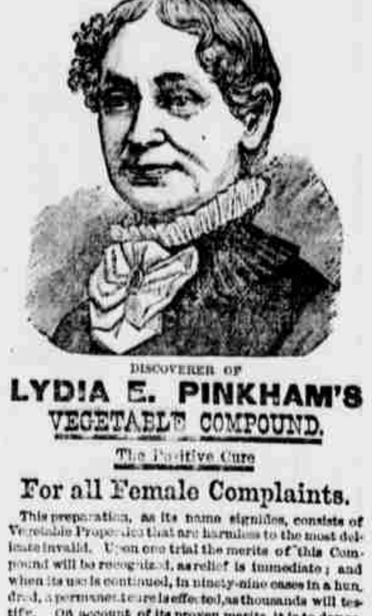

Simmons Liver Regulator, purely vegetable, is the medicine generally used in the South to arouse the torpid Liver to healthy action.

It acts with extraordinary power and efficacy on the liver and kidneys.

The action of the Regulator is free from nausea or griping. It is most effective in starting the secretions of the Liver, causing the bile to act as a cathartic. When there is an excess of bile in the Stomach, the Regulator is an active purge; after the removal of the bile it will regulate the bowels and impart vigor and health to the whole system.

On account of its proven merits, it is to-day recommended and prescribed by the best physicians in the country.

It will cure entirely the worst form of falling of the uterus, Leucorrhœa, irregular and painful Menstruation, all Ovarian Troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Floodings, all Displacements and the consequent spinal weakness, and is especially adapted to the Change of Life. Poetical.

COMFORTED.

Under the clouds the wild winds cry
With bitter plaint and moan;
Their wailing voices rise and die,
The air is filled with sob and sigh;
"But, hearts so sad and lone,
God's love is over all!"

Beneath the sky that bears no star
The storm-tossed waves are strewn,
A moaning waste that stretches far,
And deep and dark the waters are;
"But, hearts that weep alone,
God's love is under all!"

Wild desert lands before me spread
With briars overgrown;
My feet the wilderness must tread,
My soul by sorrow's hand be led—
"But, heart that maketh moan,
God's love is through it all!"

Oh rich, O sweet, O rare, complete!
O love divine at last made known!
The days go by with flying feet,
There here and there together meet,
"O, hearts, no more alone,
God's love surrounds it all!"

ROVER'S PETITION.

JAMES T. FIELD'S LAST POEM.

"Kind traveler, do not pass me by,
And thus a poor old dog forsake;
But stop a moment on your way,
And hear my woe, for pity's sake!

"My name is Rover; yonder house
Was once my home for many a year;
My master loved me; every hand
Caressed your Rover, far and near.

"The children rode upon my back,
And I could hear my praises sung;
With joy I licked their pretty feet,
As round my shaggy sides they clung.

"I watched them while they played or slept
I gave them all I had to give;
My strength was theirs from morn till night;
For only them I cared to live.

"Now I am old, and blind, and lame,
They've turned me out to die alone,
Without a shelter for my head,
Without a scrap of bread or bone.

"This morning I can hardly crawl,
While shivering in the snow and hail;
My teeth are dropping one by one;
I scarce have strength to wag my tail.

"I'm palsied grown with mortal pains,
My withered limbs are useless now;
My voice is almost gone, you see,
And I can hardly make my bow.

"Perhaps you'll lead me to a shed
Where I may find some friendly straw,
On which to lay my aching limbs,
And rest my helpless broken paw.

"Stranger, excuse this story long,
And pardon, pray, my last appeal:
You've owned a dog, yourself, perhaps,
And learned that dogs, like men, can feel."

Yes, poor old Rover, come with me;
Food, with warm shelter, I'll supply—
And Heaven forgive the cruel souls
Who drove you forth to starve and die.

A City in Four Days.

Some time ago an old prospector named Redpath found some float rock on the hills about ten miles from Deadwood, Dakota, which he thought was pure carbonate. He brought it to the city, had it assayed, and found that it went up to the thousands of ounces of silver to the ton. He also showed it to old Colorado miners, who pronounced it the pure stuff, and were very anxious to discover where it came from. There was a great deal of mystery at first, but the secret finally leaked out, and the excitement commenced. It was mild at first, but in a short time it took possession of everybody, and the stampede of the season was inaugurated. The ground on which the discovery was made was in a wild portion of the country that had never been prospected. There were no roads to the point, and the first crowd of treasure hunters made their way on horseback or afoot. They came back with specimens of rich rock, and in a day or two Deadwood, Central City and Lead City were almost depopulated. A town was laid out, lots drawn for by all present, rules of government agreed to, and the place named "West Virginia City." In forty-eight hours the town contained nearly 1000 inhabitants and nine saloons were in operation. On the third day two faro banks were opened, restaurants were started, and to cap the climax, on the fourth day the first copy of a daily newspaper, called The Carbonate Reporter, was issued. Fifty buildings have been erected during the last week, and as high as $500 has been paid for building lots. The town promises to be permanent, as there have been many rich finds.

Disappearance of a Mine.

"It don't do to fool with giant powder," said an old timer in the Larime Boomerang office "It's powerful stuff. I had a ten thousand dollar mine over in the Queen of Sheby district in '59 called the Goshallhemlock claim. I was offered ten thousand dollars for it, with five thousand dollars in Sager-brush placer stock besides, if she opened up as well ten feet further down. We put in a blast of giant powder, and when we went to make an examination we couldn't find the Goshallhemlock with an assessor and a search warrant. The hole was there, but there wasn't quartz enough to throw at a yaller dog. My idea is to sell a mine just before you put in the giant powder; and then if the owner wants to blow the property into the middle of next Chistmas, let him do it."

"Know her?" "Oh, yes." "Is she a New Yorker?" "Well, yes—not a native. She's a New Yorker by vaccination."

A TRAVELER'S STORY.

After spending months at European and American watering places and thousands of dollars looking for health, I returned home disheartened and wretched. I had consulted the best physicians and traveled far and near without benefit and expected to die. A friend urged a trial of Parker's Ginger Tonic. Three bottles and careful diet have worked wonders and brought me excellent health and spirits, and you may publish my experience for the benefit of similar sufferers.—A Cincinnati lady.

HAY FEVER.

For Hay Fever I recommend Ely's Cream Balm. It entirely relieved me from the first application; have been a sufferer for ten years Going from home, and neglecting to take the remedy, I had an attack; after returning I immediately resorted to it, and found instant relief. I believe, had I begun its use earlier, I should not have been troubled. Have stood heat, dust and draughts as well as during other months. J. Collyer, Clerk, 118 Broad street, Elizabeth, N. J.

For years I have been afflicted with Hay Fever, from early August until frost. I was induced to give Ely's Cream Balm a trial. The relief was immediate. I regard myself cured. G. Schreiber, Supt. of Cordage Co., Elizabeth, N. J. Sept. 25, 1880. Price 50 cents.

COMMUNION WINE.

The grape crop of A. Speer's vineyard in New Jersey last year was double that of any previous year. His vineyards in New Jersey have so increased each year that he has been enabled to keep him a stock four years ahead. None sold less than four years old. It has become a popular wine among the best physicians in New York, and is largely used for communion purposes, and weak and aged persons. For sale by C. A. Kleim, druggist, Bloomsburg, Pa.

A FORLORN HOPE.

Otto J. I tried local doctors, but received no relief, and 'as a forlorn hope' tried your Thomas' Oil; have only used half a fifty cent bottle, and feel as well as I ever did in my life."

THE PRESIDENT.

The latest reports from the President indicate an improvement in his condition. He has had some appetite and his food has not disagreed with him. There has been more or less fever and the pulse is still high, but his physicians do not attach any special importance to that fac . On Wednesday the President was removed from bed and placed in a reclining chair. He enjoyed the change and no ill effects were noticed. The principal danger now lies in the impure condition of the President's blood. The trouble in the right lung which it was feared was caused by an abscess does not increase, and is not considered dangerous. The President is yet a very sick man, but hopes are entertained that he will recover.

CAMERON'S VICTORY.

The Republican State Convention was held in Harrisburg on Thursday of last week. From the beginning it was evident that the Cameron forces were in the majority, and that Gen. Davies would be defeated for State Treasurer. M. S. Quay, Cameron's right hand man, was elected temporary chairman, receiving 162 votes to 83 cast for Hon. George Lear. This showed the relative strength of the two factions and the vote cast for the nominees differed but slightly from these figures, being 157 for Baily and 84 for Davies. The "independents" made a vigorous fight but without avail. It was rough on the anti-Cameronians to have Quay for presiding officer and that is probably the reason he was chosen. Cameron does not intend to yield the reins of power without a struggle and has shown that he has yet a strong following. What is the strength of the "independents" will be known when the votes are counted in November.

Gen. Silas M. Baily is a native of Fayette county, forty-five years of age and is a jeweler. During the war he was in the Eighth Regiment, of which he eventually became Colonel. He has never held a public office, and never will if Wolfe can prevent it.

DEATH OF GEN. BURNSIDE.

General Ambrose Everhart Burnside died suddenly at his home in Bristol R. I., at eleven o'clock on Tuesday morning last. The immediate cause of death was a spasm of the heart.

Gen. Burnside was born at Liberty, Indiana, May 23rd, 1824 and was therefore a little more than 57 years of age. He graduated at West Point in 1847, and remained in the army until 1853 when, having invented a breech-loading rifle, he resigned his commission and established a factory for manufacturing the arms. In 1861, at the breaking out of the war, he was appointed Colonel of the First Rhode Island regiment. He was made Brigadier General after the first battle of Bull Run. November 7th, 1862, he assumed command of the Army of the Potomac. He was unsuccessful and resigned January 26th, 1863. In May following he was assigned to the command of the department of the Ohio. In January, 1864, Burnside was relieved and assigned to the Ninth Corps. He resigned from the army April 15th, 1865. In 1866 and 1867 he was elected Governor of Rhode Island. In 1875 he was chosen United States Senator and was re elected. His present term would have expired March 3, 1887. Gen. Burnside was of fine personal appearance, courteous in manner and of good abilities.

Last week a passenger train on the Chicago & Alton R. R., was stopped and robbed by twelve masked men, between Kansas City and Independence Mo. The express messenger refused to surrender the key of the safe and was fatally beaten by the robbers. All the passengers were robbed of their watches and valuables. The exact loss is not known. Governor Chittenden issued a proclamation calling upon the people to rise and exterminate the robbers. Large bodies of mounted men have been scouring the country under the command of sheriffs and marshals. The latest reports announce the capture of several men, one of whom, named Caldwell, has it is said made a confession. This it is thought will lead to the capture of the whole gang, and probably will put a stop to future robberies of railroad trains. The Governor is evidently determined to capture the villains.

A most unexpected attempt to kill Guiteau, the assassin, was made on Sunday afternoon. Sergeant Mason, of Battery B, Second Artillery, when relieving the guard at the jail, shot at Guiteau through the window of his cell. The ball grazed the assassin's head and imbedded itself in the wall of the cell. Mason was promptly arrested and imprisoned at the arsenal. Mason's attempt indicates the detestation in which Guiteau is held and goes to show that the sufferings of the President have increased the angry feeling against his assailant. The wretched Guiteau will experience fresh alarm for his safety, now that he has seen that even his guards are not to be trusted.

The defeat of Senator Davies by the machine politicians of the Republican party, has not put an end to the fight against Cameron. Hon. Charles S. Wolfe has announced himself as an independent candidate for State Treasurer and will have no insignificant following. In various parts of the State there is strong opposition to the continuance of the Cameron rule, and Mr. Wolfe may receive so large a vote as to defeat the machine candidate at the polls in November. If the independents have the courage to maintain their convictions, the year 1881 will see the overthrow of Cameron and the enfranchising of thousands of voters who have blindly followed the directions of the machine managers.

The people of New England seem to be imbued with the same superstitions now that they had in the days when they burned witches. Recently there was a peculiar appearance of the atmosphere and it became so dark that lamps were lighted and some of the schools and business places were closed. It was thought by some that the phenomenon was connected with the removal of the President. It would puzzle these superstitious people to give a reason for their belief—but such persons do not eason.

The Wyoming county Democrats instructed their delegates to the State Convention to support J. K. Bogert for State treasurer.

By the way, what became of that endorsement of Attorney General Palmer the Republican State Convention was to have given? Was it discovered that there were too many legislators present, to render the attempt altogether safe? Even the influence of the machine managers might come to naught, when the law-makers plunged their hands into empty pockets.

Episcopal Diocese of Central Pennsylvania.

From the journal of the tenth annual convention of the Episcopal diocese of Central Pennsylvania, in charge of Bishop Howe, of Reading, the following statistics are taken:

Clergymen, including the bishop, 96, parishes and missions 126, ordinations 6, of which one is to the priesthood, candidates for holy orders 3, churches consecrated 4, families 5,214, church accommodations 27,304, baptized persons, 12,098, baptisms 1,130, of which 197 were adults, confirmed 615, communicants 7,064, marriages 220, burials 611, Sunday school scholars 10,163, Bible class scholars 684, parish school scholars 185, churches and chapels 118, rectories 42, school houses 12, cemeteries 12. Value of church property $1,115,440, offerings—parochial $168,405.28, diocesan $17,100.69, extra diocesan $9,746.32, total $195,252.29. It ought to be noted that in many of the items of this summary the report is only an approximation of the truth, many parishes having omitted to make any return. Bishop Howe in his address, besides diocesan affairs, discusses the action of the general convention upon various matters.

SPECULATIVE INSURANCE.

We publish this week the charge of Judge Elwell to the jury, in the case of the Commonwealth against Andrew Roup. The court refers in severe terms to the practices of many of the assessment life insurance companies that have been chartered within the past few years, and clearly asserts that policies taken out on the lives of those in whom the holder has no interest, cannot be collected. We know of at least one of these companies whose officers have used every endeavor to prevent fraud, but it is an unfortunate fact for the reputation of the business, that many of the persons engaged in securing policies are not men in whom the public place confidence, and it is the fraudulent practices of these people that have brought down the censure of the courts and the public generally upon this particular species of speculation. If any of these insurance companies hope to establish themselves on a permanent basis, and live down the odium now attached to them, they must abandon the purely speculative aspect of their business and build up classes of younger and healthier men and women. A little more care in the selection of agents and physicians through the country would also tend to elevate them in the eyes of the public. So far as has come to our knowledge, the companies located in this county have endeavored to transact all their business on a fair basis, and have done all in their power to prevent agents from securing bad risks. How well they have succeeded, time alone will tell.

TERRIBLY DESTRUCTIVE FIRES.

Last week fierce forest fires in northeastern Michigan destroyed hundreds of lives and thousands of dollars worth of valuable property. The burned district comprises the townships of Tittabawassie, Kochville, Frankenluth, Saginaw, Buena Vista, Blumfield, Bridgeport, Birch Run and Taymouth, in Saginaw County, and from a point about three miles west of Saginaw City to within ten miles of St. Louis, on the Saginaw Valley and St. Louis Railroad, a strip one mile wide on both sides of the road. In Tuscola County, the townships of Millington, Novesta, Dayton, Tuscola, Denmark, Vassar, Fair grove, Newburg, Arbela, Gilford and Wells have been swept clean. Huron County has been burned over from one end to the other, and presents the appearance of a blackened desert.

Crops were destroyed, barns, houses and fences burned and the ground was strewn with the dead bodies of human beings and animals. It is probable that fully five hundred persons perished. More than two hundred charred corpses have been found and buried and more are discovered daily. More than fifteen hundred families are utterly destitute and homeless, seeking shelter in barns. Their condition is pitiable and aid is invoked from the whole people of the country. It is estimated that fully ten thousand people are suffering from hunger, half clad and shelterless. This is one of the most frightful misfortunes in the history of the country and appeals most strongly to the sympathies of the generous and charitable.

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

The Republicans of the county held their convention in the Opera House, on Monday afternoon. There were about forty delegates present. The convention was called to order by J. C. Brown, chairman of the County Committee, and the certificates of delegates were presented. When Orange township was reached two sets of delegates claimed seats. Silas Conner contested the seat of H. C. Eves, and Camden Mears that of Joseph Crawford. Dr. J. Schuyler was elected temporary chairman and he appointed S. J. Pealer, Theodore W. Smith and Peter Laubach a committee to decide the contest in Orange. The committee retired and the liveliest kind of a debate took place between the members and witnesses. There was evidently much bitterness of feeling. The committee finally reported in favor of seating one of the contestants, the chairman to name the other. Dr. Schuyler flatly refused to do anything of the kind and sent the committee back to finish their work. When they returned they decided in favor of Messrs Mears and Crawford and the convention agreed to this. Then Mr. Eves made a very animated speech in which he said that he had been duly elected and would remain and vote on every question, unless removed by force. He was sharply interrupted by Isaiah Hagenbuch who claimed that Eves had no right to address the convention, as he was not a delegate. The majority apparently agreed with Mr. Hagenbuch and Mr. Eves subsided, and refrained from further participation in the proceedings. Some novel propositions were made—one delegate wished a committee on disputed elections appointed before an organization had been effected or a chairman elected, and another asked for a committee to examine credentials after the delegates had already voted two or three times. After the ripple of excitement caused by Mr. Eves' speech had subsided, the convention settled down to work. G. W. Creveling was nominated for prothonotary, by acclamation. George A. Buckingham Esq. moved to dispense with the nomination for register and recorder, but this was met by a storm of dissent. Jesse Hicks, J. P. Hayman, R. H. Ringler and W. M. Monroe were then placed in nomination. The first ballot was ineffectual and Messrs. Hicks and Monroe were dropped. On the next ballot Ringler received 24 votes and Hayman 14. Ringler was declared the nominee. For commissioner, Joshua Fetterman, John Cadman and R. F. Whitmoyer were nominated. A ballot was had and resulted as follows: Fetterman 32 votes, Cadman 4 and Whitmoyer 3. Mr. Fetterman was declared duly nominated. A discussion then arose as to the advisability of nominating a second commissioner, but it was finally decided not to do so. E. B. Brown was nominated by acclamation for county treasurer and Garrick Mallery for county auditor in the same manner. M. G. Hughes was named for Associate Judge and promptly declined the honor. The convention refused to receive his declination and nominated him despite his objections and also nominated John Rantz for the office of Associate Judge. The delegates present then named the members of the Standing Committee, a tedious and not very satisfactory method of procedure. Nobody seeming to know just who were wanted. There was very little interest evinced in any of the nominations, except for that of commissioner.

Perpetual Organization.

On the question of an active permanent organization of the Democratic party, the Harrisburg Patriot makes the following sensible remarks:

It is the sublimity of folly to attempt to organize a half million of voters in a three months' canvass. It is utterly ridiculous to think of adding proselytes to the ranks of the party by distributing documents and holding mass meetings in the heat of a campaign. It is a continuous, never-ending labor to build up a party. Not only must the central organization be constantly familiar with every detail of party work throughout the State, but it must be ready at any and every moment to take advantage of any weakness of the enemy of which it may be advised. In the winter months when the average voter has more leisure to read and on account of the absence of political excitement is more inclined to think for himself than at any other time of the year, the State Committee should make its principal effort at proselyting through the circulation of sound and instructive party literature. Indeed this kind of work should be kept up the whole year round. But in order to accomplish such a task the Chairman of the State Committee and his clerks must be constantley employed. The party headquarters must be kept open and busy year in and year out without any intermission. The "machine," as the vulgar independents would say, must run with a perpetual motion. It may be objected that the idea is visionary and impracticable because it involves the expenditure of too much money. The objection is not well-founded. The money misspent in the ordinary Chinese gong campaign to which we are accustomed will suffice to carry on all practical and sensible operations of a State organization in permanent activity. Besides one year's trial of the plan would so commend it to the party that there would be no difficulty afterward in raising the necessary sinews of war. The Chairman of the State Committee and his clerks should, however, be paid annual salaries sufficient to enable them to devote their whole time and attention to the party work. They should be men who are separated entirely from the interests of faction and who have no ambitious airs of their own. Indeed the work of the State Committee should be performed as systematically as that of a government bureau and the functionaries selected to perform it should hold their places during good behavior subject to removal only by the full committee."

Virtue, it seems, is as infectious as sin, though more difficult to make epidemic Not to be behind his neighbors, Postmaster General James has wound up the civil service machine in the Post Office Department and the applicants who serve Uncle Sam henceforth must stand competitive examination. Our own Cameron has lately come to believe in civil service reform, and he will doubtless be delighted to learn that the good work is going on; but what would Cameron do if Senators were chosen by competitive examination? The State would lose his statesmanlike gifts if the system were carried to its logical consequences.—Phila. Times.

George Thompson, who farms the place of Dr. Lee Cummins, on the line of the Wilmington and Northern Railroad, for shares, made an agreement last Winter to dispose of his share of the peach crop to B. B. Allen for a horse and sleigh valued at $150. After diligent search in the orchard last Saturday week two peaches were found, one of which Mr. Thompson delivered to Dr. Cummins as his share, and the other he handed over to Mr. Allen, according to agreement. It is not often that a man gives a horse and sleigh for a single peach of the Mountain Rose variety, as this one happened to be, or of any other kind.

Four prisoners made their escape from the county prison in Sunbury last week by cutting a hole in the sheet iron in an empty cell and removing a portion of the stone ceiling, thus making an entrance into the garret, from whence they made their way to the main part of the house. Rushing down the main stairway, they passed several of the female attendants, who were on the front porch, and made good their escape. Their names were Pat Lawless, William Hoagland, Daniel Schoop and William White. Lawless was imprisoned for manslaughter and Hoagland for burglary.

Senator Butler, of South Carolina, writing to a local paper, says: "Journalism has become as much a separate and distinct profession as medicine or law or engineering or architecture or mining, and every family should have a newspaper if they expect or care to keep pace with the current of events, in this fast-moving age. Books are not always accessible, but newspapers are, and at a price that places them within the reach of the poor as well as the rich."

Professor Swift reports that nearly three thousand letters have been received claiming the prize for the first discovery of comet B (the recent great comet). He has examined them carefully, and asserts that no conclusion can be reached, that would be scientific and satisfactory, as to the priority of its discovery. The prize will therefore not be awarded, but is offered for the best essay on comets.

The State of Massachusetts allows no negro to vote unless he can read and write and pay taxes; yet the Republican organs of that State are howling about what they call the enormous crime of a capitation tax as a prerequisite to voting in Virginia. The negro in Virginia has superlative advantages over his Massachusetts brother very evidently.—Williamsport Sun & Banner.

The Springfield Republican holds that the higher education of women renders them averse to matrimony. Such being the case, ought that sort of education to be tolerated?

It is a trite, yet nevertheless true, saying, "A friend in need is a friend indeed," and when can a man appreciate the efforts of friendship better than when it is exercised in allaying his sufferings? Man may soothe his fellow man and strive to alleviate and render bearable the untold agonies consequent upon rheumatism and neuralgia, by expressions of sympathy, but this does not assuage the tattooing sensation dancing along the nerves when afflicted with this torturing malady. Then it is that the welcome friend, St. Jacob's Oil, the Great German Remedy, is introduced, and by his power dislodges the troublesome occupant and is ever held in grateful remembrance.

J. J. Brower's carpet store is in Brower's block, nearly opposite the Exchange Hotel, on the main street. His stock of carpets, rugs, oil cloths mats, druggets, &c., is now complete, and those desirous of obtaining good bargains should call and examine the goods before making a decision.

It is full time that the members of the Standing Committee meet and choose a chairman. There is work to be done before election and if the full vote is to be polled, interest must be created. Until a chairman is elected there is no responsible leader to whom the voters can look for a proper management of the campaign.

On Friday morning last, a compositor in the COLUMBIAN office saw smoke and flames issuing from the roof of Caldwell's bakery on Centre street. He gave the alarm and the application of a few buckets of water extinguished the flames before any material damage was done. A spark from the chimney falling on the superheated shingles caused the fire.

The Normal School begins its Fall term under unusually favorable conditions. There are 76 boarders and 154 pupils who live outside of the school building—making a total of 230. This is the largest number the school has ever had at this time of year. There could hardly be better evidence that the school is growing in public favor, than the fact that the attendance steadily increases.

Mr. J. Bachman, of Bloomsburg, for the past 18 or 19 years in the employ of the P. & R. R. R. Company as a master mason and bridge builder, has the contract for building the bridge of the N. & W. B. The masons will be put to work the first of next week.—Catawissa News Item.

A bill in equity is now pending in court asking for an injunction to restrain the removal of the pump in front of the Central Hotel. It is alleged on one side that the pump is a public nuisance and an obstruction in the highway, while those who are opposed to its removal claim that it was put there many years ago by subscription, under an article of agreement, and that many of the adjoining property owners have the right to its use under this agreement. The case was heard on Monday last, and the papers are now in the hands of the Court.

Gen. Sigfried, commanding the Third Brigade recently in camp at Wilkes-Barre, has addressed a letter to Mr. H. Whitman, landlord of the Shickshinny Hotel, asking information concerning the riotous and unseemly conduct of certain soldiers on their way home. The General particularly desires to know whether any officers were present when Mr. Whitman's cigars and liquors were stolen and his wife insulted. If the offences charged were actually committed there are lively times ahead for the soldier boys.

Dr. P. H. Shultz, a prominent physician of Shenandoah, was found dead in his office on Monday last. The cause of death was probably congestion of the brain. His body was brought to Bloomsburg and buried on Wednesday. Dr. Shultz married a daughter of Zebulon Robbins and she died about a year ago.

The foundry of Harman & Hassert narrowly escaped destruction by fire last Monday night. At about midnight a bright light was discovered in the engine room, and an investigation showed that the floor was on fire. An alarm was given and the flames extinguished before much damage was done. In ten minutes more the foundry would have been beyond saving.

A very brilliant meteor was seen here on Tuesday night. It moved in a northerly direction, and was visible only about half a minute. The people of the county have almost recovered from the small pox scare, and it is full time. There never was any cause for alarm, outside of the town, and only in the earlier days of the disease was any anxiety felt here. Now the disease has run its course, the Normal and public schools are open, and business is brightening. Next month the Fair will attract hundreds of people to the town and full confidence will be once more restored. One of the most distressing features of contagious disease, is the length of time required to convince people that it no longer exists.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. McKelvy, at their residence on French street, entertained their relatives and a few friends Saturday evening, August 27, it being the first anniversary of Master J. Master Boyd was kindly remembered with many suitable and pretty presents, and a bountiful supper was prepared by the charming little mother, as hostess, of which all partook with many praises. After passing an enjoyable evening the guests returned to their homes, leaving many kind wishes with Mr. and Mrs. McKelvy and their very lovely child.—Summit County Leader, Breckenbridge, Col.

Judge Junkin, at the Perry county court, recently gave caution to hotel keepers about the practice of selling liquor by the bottle. He said the landlord was bound to know who was to use the liquor, and that no man had a right to sell a bottle of liquor to a sober man who transferred it to those who were in the habit of becoming intoxicated, or to minors. It was always suspicious when a sober man bought a bottle of whiskey; he generally was employed to buy it for those to whom innkeepers would not or dare not sell it. Proof of its transfer and use by drunkards or minors was sufficient cause for revoking the innkeeper's license.

At the camp fire of Capt. C. G. Jackson Post No. 159 G. A. R. to take place on the 22nd, 23rd and 24th insts., there will be various and sundry sports, including games of foot ball, sack and peg races, wheeling matches, a shaved pig to catch, and a greased pole to climb. Prizes will be awarded to the winners in these contests and a firemen's trumpet and a cornet for the band will be voted for. Dress parade at six o'clock each evening, and speeches afterwards. At night the camp will be brilliantly illuminated. It is expected Posts from many neighboring towns will be present, and altogether a very pleasant and enjoyable time may be anticipated.

The manner in which the mails are carried over the L. & B. R. R is simply intolerable, and the Postmaster-General ought to take measures to correct the abuse. About every other day, the morning mail fails to reach Bloomsburg and is brought here either at noon or later in the day, much to the annoyance and discomfort of our people. There certainly can be no just reason why this thing should continue at the pleasure of the railroad company and to the detriment of the community. If the L. & B. R. R. is not in fault it should not be censured, but if the failures of the mails are attributable to causes within its control, then something should be done at once to abate what has become a very large nuisance.

The total cost of repairs at the Reformed church was $1650. The amount subscribed and paid in is $1300, leaving a balance of $350 to be collected. The repairs were made through the efforts of Rev. O. H. Strunck, pastor of the church, and under his personal supervision. The building now presents a fine appearance, externally and internally, and is highly creditable to all concerned in the improvements. The attendance at the re-dedication last Sunday, was very good, both at morning and evening service. Rev. T. F. Hoffmeier, a former pastor of the church, preached very able sermons morning and evening. Rev A. F. Hosts preached an interesting and instructive sermon in the afternoon.

We have the assurance of an experienced fisherman that the worms found in black bass do not injure the fish for edible purposes, but are, when cooked, identical in taste with the flesh. He says that the worms are no more detrimental than those found in cheese or chestnuts and, in fact, add something to the sweetness of the fish. In Western waters where black bass were first found, the fish have always contained worms from about the first of June until frost. This fact does not prevent lovers of fish from partaking of their favorite food.

THE COUNTY FAIR.

By reference to the list published elsewhere in this issue of the COLUMBIAN, it will be seen that the premiums offered this year are even more liberal than usual. This should induce our people to present a larger and better class of exhibits. There are some novel and interesting features in the list, such as a mule race, in which the last one crossing the score will win; a race for lady riders; foot races, &c. A premium is offered for any couple married on the grounds and the Society will supply the minister. The purses to be awarded for trials of speed are sufficiently large to attract good horses, and there is no reason why these races should not be satisfactory. If the weather is favorable the twenty-sixth annual fair of the Society will surpass all its predecessors.

The price of tickets has been fixed as follows: Single admission 25 cents, exhibitor's tickets with four checks, $1.00, horse or horses and carriage 25 cents, membership ticket $1.00.

THE TOWN COUNCIL.

At a meeting of Council held last week, Messrs. Correll and Rabb were appointed a committee to locate two lamp posts on Second street in Scott-town. The request of Mrs. Jane Brown, to erect a veranda in front of the Central Hotel, was denied. The rate for day labor on the streets was fixed at $1.10. The President was authorized to instruct the Constable to notify all places of business not to sell cigars, tobacco, soda, drinks or any unnecessary goods on Sunday. The reason for this action of Council is, that in one place in the town there has been too much open traffic and too much noise on Sunday. In the hotels it is annoying to transient guests not to be able to purchase cigars on Sunday, and they can hardly be expected to lay in a stock on Saturday. It is well, of course, to observe the Lord's Day and refrain from the transaction of business, but too stringent measures are apt to lead to infractions of the law. However, if the Council will see that graver evils are remedied, and order and quiet preserved on the streets at night, there will not be much grumbling, though many persons are of opinion that the proprietors of the offending establishment ought to have been notified to do away with the evils complained of.

The Council agreed to pay the Lutheran congregation $250 for ground taken in opening Centre street, and the same sum to the Reformed church. A number of bills were paid, aggregating $2028.26.

COMMON WEALTH VS. ANDREW ROUP.

CHARGE OF THE COURT.

GENTLEMEN OF THE JURY: There is upon the statute-book a law making it a crime for one person to obtain from another, by means of false pretenses, any money or other valuable thing. This statute, first passed in this State in 1842, is a transcript of an English statute passed in the reign of George III., and had received by the English tribunals a construction, which, after its adoption here, was followed by our courts; the statute being considered a salutary one, because by means of falsehood and deception to obtain the consent of the owner of property to part with it is next of kin to taking the property away from him when he does not know it; but this statute was not intended to facilitate the enforcement of civil contracts; it was enacted for the purpose of protecting the public and individuals from offenses that were deemed so immoral as to be criminal, and cannot be used for the collection of debts or the settlement of accounts.

In the present case, the Commonwealth charges that "Andrew Roup, unlawfully and wickedly devising and intending to cheat and defraud one W. H. Yorge, of his goods, money and property, did falsely and designedly pretend to the said Yorge that he, Roup, knew that he, Roup, could procure and obtain an assignment or transfer of an instrument in writing, being an insurance upon the life of one William Beech, purporting to be a policy of insurance issued by the New Berlin Mutual Relief Association."

Now, the person indicted under this statute is entitled to have the very matter in which it is alleged that he has been guilty of falsehood set forth in the indictment, for it is what is set forth in the indictment that he is to come prepared to meet. The Commonwealth, then, alleges that that the pretense that was made by Roup was that he could procure and transfer a policy of insurance on Beech's life, and further that Roup on the strength of that false pretense obtained a valuable paper, to-wit a "certificate" (policy) of insurance on the life of Beech from the prosecutor Yorge.

In the first place, did Roup pretend that he knew he could get a transfer of the insurance on Beech? Is there any evidence going to prove that he made such a pretense? Yorge desired to obtain an insurance upon Beech's life, and agreed with Roup that the latter should procure it for him. Roup procured the policy (probably in the only way in which this could be done,) in the name of a son of William Beech (John Wesley Beech), and then had it transferred to himself, so that it would be in shape for him to pass over to somebody else. If Roup pretended that he could procure a policy on the life of Beech, was not that true? Did he not in fact obtain one, taken in the name of John Wesley Beech, and transferred to himself, Roup, who held it with the power of making an assignment?

I have made these remarks, because the Commonwealth must establish the complaint just as laid in her indictment.

But it has been held by the courts, ever since this statute was passed, that a mere naked lie is not a false pretense.

In Commonwealth vs. Hutchinson, 2 Parson's Reports, 315, Judge King, an eminent jurist, approvingly cited an English decision under the statute of which ours is a transcript, to the following effect:

"A representation that a person could or would do a particular act, as that he could or would get a bill discounted, though he knew he could not, is not a false pretense within the act, but rather a breach of promise."

The false pretense must have relation to some fact in existence at the time of the alleged falsehood, and amount to something more than a breach of contract. For example, if a purchaser of goods promises to pay, and does not, although his promise was specious and fair, and also false when made, all that does not make him a criminal; but, if he represented that he had money at home, or that he had valuable real estate or personal property, when in truth he did not, and obtained money or goods upon the strength of this representation, then he is guilty of a false pretense. A mere promise to do a thing which one can do, but which he afterwards refuses to do, is not a false pretense under the statute. In the opinion of the Court, although we are not disposed to take this question from the jury, the Commonwealth has failed to support the first count in the indictment.

The next question is, did the failure to make the promised assignment constitute the crime of larceny? The evidence is that Yorge, who was himself an agent of the New Berlin Mutual Relief Association, had received twelve dollars from Samuel Miller, one of the Commonwealth's witnesses, to buy Miller a policy upon the life of this same old gentleman, William Beech, but that Yorge, for some reason that does not appear, got Roup to act for him not only in Miller's matter but his own, and that when Roup procured the policy for Miller, the twelve dollars paid Yorge were deducted from the sum charged Miller, so that Yorge got his twelve dollars in that it was rightfully appropriated to Miller's benefit out of a credit to Yorge, on the company's books, of some fifteen or sixteen dollars, the balance [three or four dollars] being applied towards paying for Yorge's policy, which, as it was for the same amount as Miller's [two thousand dollars,] probably cost about the same as his, leaving something to be advanced by Roup out of his own pocket, and thus giving him a right to hold the instrument until Yorge would reimburse him for that advance. Yorge says that there was an account between himself and Roup, and that Roup owed him ten or eleven dollars on that, while Roup says that the balance was the other way—a dispute between these two agents as to which owed the other.

Larceny is the felonious taking and carrying away of the personal property of another. From this definition it is evident that if the taker honestly claims the property to be his own, he cannot be guilty of larceny. Whose was this property? The paper, whatever it was, was in Roup's possession; it stood in his name, stands in his name yet. He had represented, perhaps, that he had transferred it, but that was to obtain some advantage between himself and Yorge, who never had either title or possession, and from whom, therefore, there could be no "taking away."

But it is said that the defendant may be convicted of larceny as a bailee. A bailee is one who receives from the owner a personal chattel to be kept or used and returned to the owner. By virtue of a statute of this State, one who has received the property of another as a bailee, and converts it to his own use, may be indicted for larceny as a bailee. One who borrows property of another, and sells it or otherwise converts it to his own use, is guilty of larceny as a bailee. But where one has agreed to obtain property for another, as his agent, does so partly at his own expense, and then refuses to deliver it till he is reimbursed, he is not guilty of larceny as a bailee. If he endeavors to use his possession to cheat the alleged owner out of his property, he may be guilty of larceny as a bailee, provided such alleged owner has title carrying the right of possession.

Larceny cannot be committed of an article that has no value. It becomes important to inquire whether the policy in question is to be esteemed a valuable thing. In 1876 a law was passed, entitled "An Act for the Incorporation and Regulation of Insurance Companies." This act provides that such companies shall be organized in the same manner as mutual fire insurance companies are; otherwise the act is silent in regard to them—makes no provision for their government, and gives no definition of their power. Within the last year there have been incorporated, according to the report of the Insurance Commission, one hundred and thirty-one life assessment companies, five of which are located in Union county, where the New Berlin Mutual Relief Association is situated. It is manifest that these companies are not organized in such number to supply any public want or for any beneficial purpose. Judging by the practices of many of the companies, as reported by the Insurance Commission, it would be fair to say that their motive is pecuniary greed.

No doubt some of these companies have been organized for the purpose of affording the benefits of a good safe insurance to themselves and their fellow citizens; but the larger part of them, it is to be feared, have been organized to enable their officers to make money and to speculate on the lives of others. This is shown by current events, the practice of the agents being, in many instances, not to select good risks upon good lives, but to seek out and apply for bad risks upon bad lives—the nearer the grave the better the risk; those having reasonable prospects of an early demise being, in general, the only ones wanted. If such be the conduct of these companies, then they tolerate, if they do not maintain, mischiefs worse than the lottery, worse than the faro-table, worse than any other form of gambling; for theirs is gambling in human life, and furnishes the strongest incentive to still higher crimes. The framers of this act never could have intended to permit practices so contrary to the general policy of the law and so corrupting in their influence upon public morals. The speculative fever caused by the number and nature of these companies has seized upon all classes, until it has come to be believed by many that a short road to wealth has been discovered. This is a delusion, of which, no doubt, sad experience will, in the end, convince the victims, who will then wonder how they could have been so easily cheated.

Is the policy described in this indictment a valid legal instrument? It was obtained at the instance of Yorge, the prosecutor, upon the life of a man whom he had never seen. Was it obtained upon him because of his advanced age, he then being seventy-six, and of the consequent probability that he could not long survive, and would therefore be a good subject whose death would make very speedy return for all the investments that were made on his life? Was that the reason, the object and the purpose of obtaining this policy? I say to you gentlemen of the jury, that, if such was the case, the whole proceeding was against the policy of the law. The policy-holder was not a relative of William Beech; William Beech owed him nothing; he had, therefore, no interest in the life of William Beech; on the contrary, if he or any of his assignees had any interest at all, it was an interest in the death of William Beech.

A case was tried in a United States court at Pittsburg, last June, in which Daniel F. Seybert, the use party, claimed to have a policy in the Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Company on the life of a then deceased person, a stranger to himself. Judge Atchison, of that court, in his charge to the jury, laid down the law, as we also hold it, in these words:

"It is a general rule of law that no one can procure valid insurance upon a life, unless he has an interest in that life. I may insure my own life, for I have an interest in it; but an entire stranger to me, one who has no interest in my life as a creditor or otherwise, cannot take out a valid policy on my life. Should he procure such a policy, the law would condemn it as a mere wager, a bet on my life, a gambling contract and there could be no recovery thereon. This rule prevails not in the interest of insurance companies, not out of regard for them; the rule is itself founded in good morals and in sound public policy. It has been well said of such wagering policies, that if valid, they would not only afford facilities for a demoralizing system of gaming, but furnish strong temptation to the party interested to bring about, if possible, the event insured against. The annals of crime furnish more than one instance where murder has been perpetrated by the holders of such policies that they might reap the fruits of speculative insurance upon the life of their victim. If an entire stranger to me were permitted to take out insurance on my life, his sole interest, you must perceive, would be my speedy death. The law, therefore, wisely takes from him the temptation to bring about the event, by forbidding such a contract. The evils of gambling in such policies are also apparent and great, and therefore the law will not sanction insurance obtained for the purpose of speculating upon the hazard of a life in which the assured has no interest."

The policy procured by these two agents of the same company, by getting the son Wesley, for a trifle, to let his name be used, when it was fully understood that neither he nor his father should have the benefit of the insurance, but that the agents should have it, was an unlawful document and of no value—nothing could be recovered upon it at law. It may be that some insurance companies would pay such policies, in order to establish a reputation for paying losses, but as legal claim it could not be enforced. When parties engaged in a scheme of that kind come in and ask the aid of the Court to enforce their illegal contract, the Court will not grant relief to either, it will not make use of the process of law to assist persons in gambling or in enforcing contracts which are contrary to public morals.

The jury in this case may dispose of the costs, if they acquit the defendant. Whether sentence can be imposed upon such finding will be considered by the Court after the verdict.

[Verdict—Defendant not guilty; prosecutor William H. Yorge to pay half the costs, and defendant Andrew Roup, the other half.]

HEALTH AND HAPPINESS.

It seems strange that any one will suffer from the many derangements brought on by an impure condition of the blood, when SCOVILL'S BLOOD AND LIVER SYRUP will restore perfect health to the physical organization. It is indeed a strengthening syrup, pleasant to take, and has proven itself to be the best blood purifier ever discovered, effectually curing Scrofula, Syphilitic diseases, Weakness of the Kidneys, all Nervous disorders and Debility. It corrects indigestion. It makes the old feel young, and the young feel gay; and will invariably drive out of the system the many ills that human flesh is heir to. A single bottle will prove to you its merits as a health renewer, for it acts like a charm, especially when the complaint is of an exhaustive nature, having a tendency to lessen the natural vigor of the brain and nervous system.

A DANGEROUS COUNTERFEIT.

There is a dangerous counterfeit in circulation, purporting to be "Walnut Leaf Hair Restorer." The strongest evidence of the great value of "Walnut Leaf Hair Restorer" is the fact that parties knowing its efficacy try to imitate it. Each bottle of the genuine has a "fac simile" of the signature of "D. E. Becker"—the manufacturer—blown in the glass; and the "Restorer" is as clear and harmless as water, while it possesses all the component properties necessary to restore life, vigor, growth, and color to the hair. BARBED WIRE are undoubtedly the cheapest and most durable fence made, is not affected by fire, wind or flood, does not cause snow drifts, takes fewer posts and stock cannot push it down. Our wire is four pointed, is made of two strands of number 12 best galvanized steel wire twisted together just enough to allow for contraction and expansion in Summer and Winter, barbs are fastened every seven inches. The use of barbed wire is no longer an experiment, as last year over one hundred thousand miles were put up. We believe our wire to be the best and cheapest now manufactured because it is made of the best steel wire and runs 15 feet to the pound having the greatest strength and visibility with the least weight of any made. Put up on spools of about 100 rods weighing about 100 pounds. Price per pound 11 cents by the spool, less quantities 11½ cents per pound.
FENCES

"What will TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT cure?" asks the sufferer from a multitude of diseases. We answer: It will remove from the system the active cause of most of the diseases that flesh is heir to. It won't mend a broken limb, nor close a bullet hole; but it may be profitably used in stomachic diseases. It will do no one any harm, and may do much good. Try it and see if it won't suit your case.

The lower leaves of grain in blossom contain quite a quantity of fat and wax; those of oats are found not infrequently to contain 10 per cent of these substances. Investigation goes to prove that all kinds of grass cut in blossom contains more of fat and wax than when cut later. Professor Way found that early cut grass contained 6½ per cent of fat while that cut the latter part of June did not contain more than 2 per cent. There are few persons who have not noticed a bluish bloom on the leaves of grass and grain, perhaps more distinctly noticeable in seasons when the rainfall is not too abundant. Now this bloom is the wax of the plant, and at times is so abundant as to seriously interfere with the easy working of the mowing machine. This wax preserves the sugar of the plant from being too easily washed out. In case the grass gets wet after it is mown this wax will have to be washed off before the sugar can be reached.

Pigs for Profit.

When we hire a servant to work we select one we think best suited to the work we require done. But in raising of animals we do not consider so much as we should for what purpose the animal is needed. With many persons a pig is a pig and a cow a cow no matter whether or not they are best suited to their purpose. It should be remembered of swine that the Berkshire are best for bacon, the smaller breeds for pork. If you want pigs with good constitutions which will come to early maturity and weigh 200 pounds or thereabouts at a year old, take an Essex, or small Yorkshire boar, and cross him on some of the large, coarse sows with which the State abounds. Such pigs will be good feeders, easily kept, and will give the best average results for pork and bacon. If real improvement is expected, a pure boar should be used as much as a pure bred bull on a herd of cows, whether the calves are wanted for the dairy or the butcher. The larger the sow and the smaller the boar, the more will the pigs be able to eat in proportion to their size, and the greater will be their growth in proportion to the food consumed.—Tribune and Farmer.

Farmers who have never tried tree planting fail to realize the rapidity of cultivated forest growth. Judge Whiting, of Whiting, Iowa, has fifty acres in trees of his own planting, none more than fifteen years' growth, including a belt of black walnuts 840 rods in length averaging sixteen rows of trees, and numbering fifty seven thousand. They are only eight or nine years old, and the largest are four or five inches in diameter. "In two years more," the Judge says, "I shall not have to go to Chicago for my fence posts." It has been thought this tree is a slow grower. It has been found, after the first year or two, with good soil and cultivation, it comes on more rapidly. His method is: To bury the nuts in the fall in moist ground not too deep for freezing and cracking open; to plant them as they begin to sprout in the Spring, in rows five feet apart and thirty to thirty-six inches apart in the row; to cultivate for two years as he would corn. He is satisfied that 160 acres having a belt of trees of ten acres, will produce more than the whole quarter section without the belt.

Good Farming.

It is one sign of a good farmer if he prizes manure. It does not require a good farmer to raise bountiful crops on a farm already rich, but the art lies in so manuring the farm that it will produce good crops every year without losing in fertility. A man may make money from his farm and be wasteful of fertilizers, but he is not a good farmer, for he is constantly running his land into debt which it will require years of good tillage to overcome. Good farming consists of such management as will make the farm produce the best possible results without deteriorating the soil. This can only be accomplished by a rigid economy in the making and use of manure, and a systematic rotation of crops that will be the least exhaustive to the soil. It is not always the best farmer who grows the most produce from his acres any more than it is the most successful merchant who sells the most goods. A farm may yield abundantly of exhaustive crops for years, and return to the owner a handsome income, but there must be a reaction sooner or later, for soil cannot produce crops without food any more than a cow can give milk without feed and drink. We must live according to our means and practice the same rule in our farming.

Preserving Hams.

The Elmira Farmers' Club received the following method of curing hams from Tuscambia, Alabama. The recipe is as follows: After the pork was cut and the hams nicely and closely trimmed and well rubbed with salt, pulverized saltpetre was sprinkled over the flesh, a dessert-spoonful to a medium ham, and best sugar molasses, two or three spoonfuls, poured from the spoon on the same, and salt heaped on; the meat was bulked, hams first, shoulders next and sides on top. It remained in bulk according to the weather four to six weeks, and was then broken up and the meat washed in warm water. The hams were then held in kettles of diluted lye, kept briskly boiling and long enough to swell out the meat some and close the pores. Next they were rolled in good clean ashes, sacked, hung up to be smoked, and then remain until taken down for sale or use. The lye was previously prepared from the ash of some good wood.

Manure should be forked over occasionally to make it fine. If it is heating then muck or loam should be mixed with it to absorb the ammonia which is formed during the process of decomposition. Sprinkling the manure pile with ground plaster is advisable. The plaster will absorb any ammonia which escapes from the pile and save it for the use of growing plants. Ammonia is too valuable an element of plant food to allow it to be wasted. Again upon some lands plaster is an excellent fertilizer.

A BENEFICENT ACTION.

The worn look and miserable feelings of those closely confined in mills, or at desks or work tables, are caused by weak stomach, kidneys or bowels, and show the necessity for some mild tonic to build them up. No one need suffer thus who will use Parker's Ginger Tonic; for without intoxicating it has such a beneficent action on these sluggish organs as to cleanse the poisonous matters from the system, that rosy cheeks and good health and spirits are soon brought back again.—Express. See advertisement.

A stern wheel boat going up the river in sight of Pittsburg, kicks up such a dust that she looks like a frame house on fire. The river is so low that even turtles, terrapins and tadpoles can't get a drink at the bars.

Drinking beer may quench thirst, but it will not refresh the memory.—New York News. That delicate matter is one of the unpleasant duties of the bartender.—Keokuk Constitution.

Voudooism.

"The dark places of the earth are full of the habitations of cruelty," wrote the Psalmist many centuries ago. This is just as true now as it was then, much of the cruelty being in connection with the rites of heathenish religions. One of the most notable instances of this is the horrible practice of cannibalism among the negroes of Hayti. This practice they have inherited with other "Voudou" horrors from their African ancestors. Although Hayti is nominally under Roman Catholic care, the Archbishop, four bishops and nearly one hundred priests are unable to cope with the powerful influence of time-honored superstition among the negroes. The professors of "Voudou," who have the "serpent house" in each village wood, originally came from the Congo coast and were of the tribe called Mandingoes, celebrated for their skill as sorcerers and secret poisoners and for being serpent worshipers, child slayers and cannibals. Out of over 700,000 inhabitants of Hayti there are only 20,000 who do not openly belong to "Voudou." The priests of this region have absolutely power, owing to their knowledge of herb-poisoning and of the antidotes. Owing to this knowledge, which nothing will induce them to divulge, they can poison either slowly or quickly, painfully or the reverse, and can procure a death like sleep. They are consequently resorted to by people who wish to get rid of others either for gain, from jealousy or the like. The secret poisoning is carried on to an enormous extent. It goes on, indeed, under the name of "Obi" wherever negroes are found. The great feasts of "Voudou" are at Christmas, at Whitsuntide and at Easter. The drum is beaten at midnight and the people assemble. The ceremony commences by the most terrible oaths of secrecy. Then dancing begins and the excitement is kept up by copious libations of rum till one or more of the performers fall down in a fit, when the spirit of "Voudou" is supposed to have entered into them. These orgies last generally three nights and sometimes longer. On the first night a cock is offered up at the altar, and its blood is drank warm. On the second a goat is treated in the same way. But on the third night children are brought in; their throats are cut by the priests; their blood is handed round and drank warm and their bodies are then cut up and eaten. Before the sacrifice takes place the priest orders as many children as he requires. They must be of pure African descent and not over ten years of age. These children are invariably forthcoming, either by being voluntarily given up or obtained by being stolen by women who make a profession of it. They are expert at their trade. Entering a house at night, naked and oiled, they steal the child, and by administering a narcotic poison render it insensible. It is then conveyed to a secret place till required for the sacrifice, when an antidote brings it to. Then its throat is cut. Children are often voluntarily given up by their mothers for the sacrifice. In order to be initiated into "Voudou" it is necessary to have killed some human being; a child is preferred. It is believed that Voudouism is on the increase in Hayti. The besotted ignorance in which the unfortunate black people lived for many generations made them so susceptible to influences of this kind, that it will be a long time before they can be expected to forsake their superstitions and rise to something better.

A fair trial will convince the most skeptical of its curative powers. It effectually cleanses the nasal passages of Catarrhal virus, causing healthy secretions, allays inflammation and irritation, protects the membranal linings of the head from additional colds, completely heals the sores, and restores the sense of taste and smell. Beneficial results are realized by a few applications. A thorough treatment as directed will cure Catarrh. As a household remedy for cold in the head it is unequaled. The balm is easy to use and agreeable. Sold by druggists at 50 cents. On receipt of 50 cents will mail a package Send for circular, with full information.

THE BEST REMEDY

FOR

Diseases of the Throat and Lungs.

In diseases of the pulmonary organs a safe and reliable remedy is invaluable. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL is such a remedy, and no other so eminently merits the confidence of the public. It is a scientific combination of the medicinal principles and curative virtues of the finest drugs, chemically united, of such power as to insure the greatest possible efficiency and uniformity of results. It strikes at the foundation of all pulmonary diseases, affording prompt relief and rapid cures, and is adapted to patients of any age or either sex. Being very palatable, the youngest children take it readily. In ordinary Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Influenza, Clergyman's Sore Throat, Asthma, Croup, and Catarrh, the effects of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL are magical, and multitudes are annually preserved from serious illness by its timely and faithful use. It should be kept at hand in every household for the protection it affords in sudden attacks. In Whooping-cough and Consumption there is no other remedy so efficacious, soothing, and helpful.

Low prices are inducements to try some of the many mixtures, or syrups, made of cheap and ineffective ingredients, now offered, which, as they contain no curative qualities, can afford only temporary relief, and are sure to deceive and disappoint the patient. Diseases of the throat and lungs demand active and effective treatment; and it is dangerous experimenting with unknown and cheap medicines, from the great liability that these diseases may, while so trifled with, become deeply seated or incurable. Use AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and you may confidently expect the best results. It is a standard medical preparation, of known and acknowledged curative power, and is as cheap as its careful preparation and fine ingredients will allow. Eminent physicians, knowing its composition, prescribe it in their practice. The test of half a century has proven its absolute certainty to cure all pulmonary complaints not already beyond the reach of human aid.
